MIGHT HAVE BEEN FATAL

Rev. R. Nairn Struck by a Freight Train Sunday Evening.

What might have proven a fatal accident was narrowly averted at Newman about 7 o'clock Sunday evening, and as it was Rev. Robt. Nairn received somewhat severe injuries.

Mr. Nairn was walking along the railway track with Mr. Wm. Greenwood towards church, when they heard the approach of a train from the east. Mr. Greenwood stopped off the track, but Mr. Nairn, being in a hurry to reach the place of worship, proceeded some distance ahead and, when the train had about overtaken him, stopped, as he thought, clear of the track. Unfortunately he did not get on the size of the cylinder on the engine and it struck him on the shoulder. He was pitched some distance and alighted on his head.

Mr. Greenwood and others rushed to his assistance and found that he had sustained a nasty cut over one eye, a severe abrasion of the skin on his face and a general shaking up.

Mr. Nairn was conveyed as quickly as possible to his residence on the Rideout Estate. Dr. Scott was summoned and dressed his wounds. The Rev. gentleman is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances, but he will be confined to his home for some time.

A GREAT DIVINE'S DEMISE.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage Passed Away at His Late Home.

Washington, April 12.—Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, the noted Presbyterian divine, died at 9 o'clock tonight at his residence in this city. It has been evident for some days that there was no hope of his recovery and the attending physicians so informed the family. The patient gradually grew weaker until life passed away so quietly that even the members of the family, all of whom were watching at the bedside, hardly knew all was over. The immediate cause of death was inflammation of the brain. Dr. Talmage was in poor health when he started away from Washington for Mexico for a vacation and rest six weeks ago. He was then suffering from influenza and serious catarrh conditions. Since his return to Washington, some time ago, he has been quite ill. Until Thursday, however, fears of his death were not entertained. The last rational words uttered by him were on the day preceding the marriage of his daughter, when he said: "Of course, I know you Maud." Since then he has been unconscious.

At Dr. Talmage's bedside besides his wife were the members of his family, Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage, Chicago; Mrs. Warren G. Smith, Brooklyn; Mrs. Daniel Mangum, Brooklyn; Mrs. Allan E. Donnan, Richmond; Mrs. Clarence Wyckoff and Miss Talmage, Washington.

Washington, April 13.—Arrangements were completed today for the funeral services in this city over the body of Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage. The funeral will take place at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the Church of the Covenant, and the services will be very simple. There will be no funeral sermon, but short addresses concerning the life and work of Dr. Talmage will be made by men who have been intimately associated with him. Silent tribute to the memory of Dr. Talmage was paid today by thousands of people who walked past the residence on Mass avenue, where the visit of death was marked by a cluster of violets tied with a streamer of black hanging at the right of the entrance.

Johnny Biley and Sulisty, the two leading stars of the comic roll, showed a wide range of humorous genius, and captured the house from their first rally and held it without difficulty until the end of the farce. The specialties, too, were equally well staged, and can safely say that the Otto Fiechtl's Comic Players is one of the best attractions ever appeared in Salt Lake City.—Salt Lake Tribune.

McCROSSAN BANQUETTED

A Successful Affair at the Russell House Last Night.

One of the most successful banquets ever tendered to a private citizen was given last night at the Russell House to Mr. J. A. McCrossan, who leaves on Thursday to take an important position in the Lardon district, British Columbia. It was attended by a number of the prominent business men of the town and was a distinct mark of esteem and regret at the departure of a citizen who has for about 11 years been prominently connected with Rat Portage.

At no banquet ever held in Rat Portage have the tables presented a more or more delicate appearance. The edibles were the choicest and most tempting it was possible to secure. There seemed to be nothing missing and the service gave evidence of the most thorough organization, for all of which Mr. Gaudaur and his efficient staff received the highest praise.

Mr. W. A. Wei occupied the head of the tables with the guest of the evening, Mr. McCrossan, to his right, Mr. Carmichael occupied the vice chair.

The toasts were limited to "the King," "the guest" and "the craft" to all of which able responses were made. Mr. Deacon's address was a very black and is regarded the abstemious life and is regarded to do so. If it, his brain loses its best activities, his hand, his cunning; and everyone who is suspicious of the man who kills away in the least degree. And it is because of the growth of public opinion in this direction that true religion in regard to the use of intoxicants and all kinds of pleasures will be accomplished. Legislation will not do it at every boy and every man and every woman must come to see that the only rule for them in this world of competition is the abstemious life, as Lord Roberts puts it. We have heard great deal of late of the strenuous life, but the abstemious life is still more to the point and applies to every man and to every woman. With the two together, so much the better.—World.

ITS POCKET IS THE ROAD TO ITS DEARTH.

Wisdom dwells in the idea attributed to Cecil Rhodes that the true way for Great Britain to secure United States friendship is to use American products. The United States has a heart and a pocket. The pocket is the key to its heart. A British tariff which taught the producers of the United States to appropriate the goods of Great Britain would be the most efficient promoter of Anglo-Saxon unity.

Great Britain's open market is the most potent external cause of prosperity in the United States. Increase the difficulties of access to that market and motive is supplied for American appreciation of British good-will. At present the British market is easily opened and the United States does not realize its own immense financial influence in the welfare of its best customer.—Toronto Telegram.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The prettiest American girl now feted in Europe is Miss Gladys Denon, of New York. She is but nineteen, yet all the courts are agitated over her. And the Crown Prince of Germany became so infatuated that his father, the Emperor, was compelled to interfere to prevent complications.

The St. Paul Globe says: Canada brought in $10,000 worth of American merchandise in excess of her exports to the United States. This peaceful neighbor is worth more to the country than the Philippines, for which we are shedding blood and expending millions.

The eleventh annual report of the Alaska Territory Gold Mining commission, made up since March, shows the great value of a low grade free milling gold property when the plant upon it is sufficiently large to handle the ore in large quantities. The property of this company upon Douglas Island, Alaska, and its report of operations for the year ending May 15, 1901, has just been made public. During the year there were 457,900 tons of ore crushed, an average of 2.24 tons every 24 hours.

"I have had kidney and urinary troubles for more than three years with severe pain in the small of my back and in both sides. I could not sleep without difficulty, and I had severe neuralgic pain in both temples. Seeing the advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box. Two hours from neuralgic relief, reducing the pain from the back and sides, and banishing the neuralgic pains from my head. The urinary difficulty is now entirely gone. I feel fresh and vigorous in the mornings, and am much stronger in every way since taking these pills." CLARENCE E. SKEDE, Carpenter and Builder, Trouton, Ont.

A FAILURE.

You say your life is a failure. And I ponder the words you say. As I gaze on your deep brow care-lined And your dark hair streaked with grey.

For I see in your eyes new-troubled, Earnestly bent on me. That the soul knows naught of failure As it looks forth strong and free.

You say your life is a failure! What, then, do the words convey? I always thought that failure Should be feared only to-day.

But I see down the years swift passing A man in his earliest youth Turn aside from the mad world's honors To bow at the shrine of truth.

With his deep brow reverent, thoughtful, Aglow with the ages' light, And his painted heart tremulous yearning Adfume with his new-found right.

The unquenched fire-seed burning Through the frost of the night of time That he brings again to his brothers And offers in faith sublime.

Had they met not his prayers with laughter, Nor trampled his pearls again, This earth were indeed the Eden It never has been too men.

We give our praise to the martyr, Who died when his faith was aflame; We bow to his tomb as an altar, And worship the sound of his name.

But a greater than he is the brother, Through the chill of the frost of the years, Who sowed the seed of the faithful And reaps but a harvest of tears.—Lloyd Anthony.

A TOAST.

To Gilbert Parker, M.P. Once more you come to tread the well-loved heath, Once more to cross home's threshold—shadow'd now.

The olden laurel glimmers at your brow; But something more than Aet's untending wreath Inform your eyes a light Fate doth bestow.

The Song of Destiny who shall endow The coming years and pure and clear by snow, A talismanic crest belimed in darkness sheath.

We watched you from life's testy stone of release, The deathless form of Beauty watch-ed you take The Staff of State, with fine prophetic ease.

For this our yearning pride is stirred to make Your welcome brave—yet 'tis the cup's rime foam Whose welcome is— Good comrades, welcome home.—Joseph Nevill Dingle.

The Term "Infantry."

The term "Infantry" was first used by the Spaniards in the wars with the Moors to designate the foot-soldiers of a royal prince or gentleman. It was extended to the entire body of foot soldiers, and finally adopted throughout Europe.

A Canadian Freight Anomaly.

Some curious anomalies exist in connection with freights in Canada, as elsewhere. One of these is that a barrel of apples has to bear a higher freight rate than a barrel of flour, the former sent from London, Ontario, to Liverpool, costing about 50 per cent. to 100 per cent. more than a barrel of the latter.—London Freight Review.

of attracting your attention, but when I opened the door I could not resist the temptation to help out, even though the "federal" prediction might displease you."

Kathryn stared at him. "How did you get in without my hearing you?" she demanded. "I locked all the doors hours ago."

"That is my business," he explained. "No," he went on as she drew herself up. "I did not mean to indicate that it was long of yours. I merely mean that it is my responsibility to get into houses with as little disturbance to the occupants as possible."

A voice of red velvet came from the door. "So you are just a common burglar," she demanded, with icy scorn.

He flinched at the insult. She did not seem to care, but in a moment his eyes assumed a haunted look. "No," he said, "I am not a burglar. I assure you. In fact, I am not only a burglar, and a pretty bad one at that, I thought. You see, I was not brought up to a respectable trade, and when I was thrown upon my own resources I had to do the best I could. I sought every where for work, but my family friends remembered the time when I had a 'reputable' life and would not have me, while others seemed to think that I did not mean what I said when I asked for the simple work I could perform. No man, fashioned to be a purser who was more fashionable than he did, and I couldn't tell him that I had no others."

"Still, that is no excuse for becoming a burglar."

"No," he admitted, "but yesterday it came to a choice between the poorhouse and a rich one, and when I passed your house this afternoon I heard you tell a friend you would be all alone save for the servant. I did not intend to take much, just enough to get me to Chicago, and I never supposed that you would be travelling about this time of night. Then, you see, when a man has been practically starving for two days there is—"

She flashed a sharp glance at him. "Do you mean to tell me that you have starved to death?" she demanded.

"Not quite that, or I should not be here, but if I remember right the last meal I had was Tuesday morning. This is Thursday. It might have been Monday, but I think it was Tuesday."

Kathryn picked up a granite vase and said: "You should have gone to the police, but I suppose you are too fond of your 'reputation'."

He bowed, his eyes resting absently upon the little lavender form in front. "Here was a girl who was not afraid of burglars, and who carried herself as fearlessly as though she were entertaining a guest."

In the dining room she laid out a "chateaubault." Then she set herself down on the other side of the table, and did she speak till the first course was served for food had been satisfied.

"You don't look a bit like a burglar," she said, amusingly as she looked at the well-built man opposite. "Somehow you look as though you were cut out for a leader of men."

"If I keep this sort of thing up," he expanded with glib humor. "I am apt to wind up getting a chateaubault." She struck up with a little cry. "You mustn't keep it up. You must not work and make your people proud of you. You must not go to prison."

"I don't know," he responded, regarding her with a look of mingled...

through that Rothberger deal in splendor and shap, and in consequence I've given him the promotion he deserved. By the way, Kathryn, where did you meet that chap? He was a lucky find for me."

Kathryn does not answer, but with a conscious blush looks into the drawing room, where the softly shaded lights play on the gilt eared mirror. The bell rings, but she does not wait to receive the guest in the hall. He finds her in the dim drawing room, before the mirror. She is looking over her shoulder, and she wears a lavender gown.

A Wonderful Sense of Smell. The burglar's wonderful sense of smell is a curious subject that has often been discussed, the discussion of the matter having resulted in a general uniformity of opinion among scientists that they locate their food by their sense of smell alone.

A noted biologist says that he has noticed that in Florida they never leave the roots where the night is spent, especially on damp, foggy mornings, until the moisture has been dried by the sun. They then move slowly across the wind until a "scent" is struck, when they move more slowly "up the wind" until the earthen is located. Sometimes they will drift down the wind past their prey until they have struck the scent, which they follow up until they have found the object of their search, sometimes in the densest thickets.

The Best Works. A story is told of one of the old time pillars of a New England church who held out firmly for a long time against the innovation of an organ, but when he finally yielded did so without reserve.

From violent opposition he became the most strenuous of all the congregation as to the fitness of the instrument to be purchased.

"Seems to me you aren't very consistent," said one economical brother respectfully. "Here a month ago you couldn't speak harsh enough about organs, and now you go to advocating extra expense in getting the best that's to be had."

"See here," said the deacon grimly. "We're going to worship the Lord by machinery. I don't want to putter round with any second rate running gear."

When You Travel. Don't wait until you reach the station, a few minutes before it is time for the train to start, before you find out the time for starting, arriving at your destination and the time of connection. Other passengers wish to take the same train and must buy tickets. And don't argue the question of the price of your ticket with the ticket seller. The price is settled by the managers and directors of the road. If the price is unjust, address a communication to them and stay at home till the price is satisfactory or pay it and keep still.

In the Streets of Cairo.

One of the most picturesque places in the world is undoubtedly the Egyptian city of Cairo, and not the least of its attractions are the varied and often musical street cries which assail the ears on all sides. Not only the street musicians who tap their tambourines to the adorning "Alahs" of the crowd, but the merchants and peddlers, con-tribute to the chorps.

A fruit seller, basket on head, with grapes and figs, will saunter by singing in a quaint minor: "Oh, grapes, oh, sweet grapes, that are larger than doves' eggs and sweeter than new cream! Oh, angels' food, delicious figs, bursting with honey, restorers of health!"

Another street cry which may be heard in the main street of Abbassieh, a suburb, contains the following enter-taining announcement: "Tomorrow, O peo-ple, I am going to kill a camel. The doctor says it is young and healthy. Oh, its flesh will be tender as the udder and juicy as lamb. Its price is but 3 1/2 pinsters (7 1/2 cents) the pound. Do you love the sweet flesh of a camel? Then come early and be satisfied!"

Not the least picturesque figures in the streets are the city police in their neat white and red uniforms in sum-mer and blue serge in winter.

At the Throttle.

Far, far down the track is a dark spot, over which hovers a great cloud. The engineer sees it, hauls out his watch, glances at it, then resumes the business of looking out of the window. He was to meet an eastbound freight at that point. He did not know if the switches were in place; he did not know but the passenger train would dash into that freight and the death of many people follow. There was no way for him to know except that it was the duty of his fellow employees to see that the switches were right. He did not slacken his speed. Rapidly the huge mogul on the sidetrack loomed up. A roar and a dash, and No. 67 few past the waiting freight, passing within three feet.
